

This is Jessa and I'm with a team called the God Squad. Your number has landed on the list of investigations. We're not saying everyone there is corrupt, but the Holy Spirit's been leading us, and here's what He's telling us: there are underground tunnels.

Does this mean anything to you? Here are the phrases the Holy Spirit gave us: We built this city. Another one bites the dust. I had Raisin bran for breakfast.

Let me be frank: we're freelance investigators. We can track your car, your phone - we can listen in on everything. You're in a radio station, for goodness sake, everything is a listening device. With permission from the building owners, it's not even hacking.

So here's the thing: someone there may be doing the wrong thing. You can come clean. Take the offer of amnesty. Call us and tell us what you know.

Also, paint protection. Does that mean anything to you? Or someone you know? We're looking for men and women of God, white people that will stand up for the truth, to not shrink from doing what is right, but we can't find any. So maybe, maybe you know some good people. I would encourage you to put that on the radio, you know, blast it all over.

Remember, we're freelance investigators. We don't need permission to low jack your car and find out where you're going, what you're up to, where you've been. It may be inadmissible, but we don't care - except for the ones that can be used in court like ones at your radio station.

Ohh hey have a great new year. And we encourage you to come clean with anything, that you know. Thank you.
